The band's show, at CBS' Ed Sullivan Theater on West 48th Street, will be filmed and will air on “The Late Show with David Letterman” on July 6. Tickets for the performance will go on sale to the general public at noon on Friday. In a typical radio communication system, communication channels are established between a source of communication and a destination of communication. If the communication channel is a point-to-point communication channel, the communication channel is established between the source and destination. If the communication channel is a point-to-multipoint communication channel, the communication channel is established between the source and a subset of the destinations. One example of a point-to-point communication channel is a telephone channel between a calling party and a called party. An example of a point-to-multipoint communication channel is a radio channel used to establish communication between a group of subscribers (e.g., a radio telephone communication system). The group of subscribers are one of many possible destinations for the point-to-point communication. The communication between a source and a destination is established via a communication channel. The communication channel is typically a broadcast communication channel. The communication channels may be a wireline, radio, optical, infrared, wireless, etc., communication channel. In a communication system where the communication channels are wireless, a point-to-multipoint communication channel is established when the communication channels are operative between a source, a destination and a plurality of destinations. When a communication channel between a source and a destination is operative, communication information that is communicated from the source to the destination is typically communicated over the communication channel. For example, a cellular telephone communicates over a point-to-multipoint communication channel to communicate information to a cellular telephone in communication with a base station (e.g., a cellular telephone in communication with a cellular telephone company). When the communication channel is a point-to-multipoint communication channel, each destination is located at a respective physical position relative to the source. For example,
